

Pandemonium

Sometimes it takes a quicker, jumpier animal to make the cut.

A jittery alphabet monkey went over the bridge to cool off a quixotic zebra.

Hallway quizzes always make boring classes feel jumpy and vexed.

Here's a little advice: xylem fibers break well when grumbling quips jazz things up.

If xyloquinone could actually make itself useful, vowel squiggles would bid hijacked pizza goodbye.

Exit signs indicate that wheezing bovines should joke about rye bread and puzzling quiffs.
